Fly Fishing in the Flathead

Friday evening, June 20 through
Sunday morning, June 22

Registration Fee: $146

Beyond BOW workshops provide opportunities to learn outdoors skills. Workshops are designed especially for women and are an extension of the Becoming an Outdoors-Woman program sponsored by Montana Fish, Wildlife & Parks.

Here's the workshop that many ladies have been asking for — fly-fishing. Participants will learn about fish identification, knot tying, choosing the proper fly, and perfecting your casting skills under the helpful guidance of the instructors. You'll learn proper methods to land, play and release a fish. Fish cleaning and cooking will be taught, too. Other topics include an overview of aquatic insects and how to tie fishing flies. In the evening enjoy a "fish art" class.

This workshop is for beginner or intermediate fly fishers. Participants should bring their own fly rod and reel with matching fly line, or one will be provided. A supply list of suggested items will be provided to those registering for the workshop.

The registration fee includes two nights lodging and 4 meals. The workshop is based at the Glacier Outdoor Center (GOC) located just outside the west entrance to Glacier National Park. Participants will stay in a modern log cabin with shared living and sleeping space, and a full kitchen. The cabin offers a spectacular view of the mountains in Glacier National Park and is a short walk from the on-site trout pond.

Requirements to Participate

- ✓ You need to be familiar (but not expert) with a fly rod and reel. Participants are encouraged to bring their own, or one will be provided.
- ✓ You need a 2008 Montana Fishing License, available for purchase from license agents, FWP offices or online at www.fwp.mt.gov.
- ✓ Other equipment such as waders, a fishing vest, flies, sunglasses, and a cap are recommended.

We'll provide all meals on Saturday and breakfast on Sunday. If you have a dietary restriction or medical condition, please note it on the registration form.
